Introduction to the Role	Green Rose provides advice, support and training for Lancashire residents and organisations on all matters related to making homes more sustainable, reducing their energy use and helping households to stay warm and well. Our services are delivered through a range of different channels: digitally, over the phone, in people's homes, and from our Sustainability Hub in the centre of Lancaster. In partnership with the councils in Lancashire and their appointed managing agents we run two key advice services: 1) The Cosy Homes Advice Team: this supports households on low incomes and who are vulnerable to the cold with useful advice on how to reduce their energy bills, stay warm and well, and access support services in their local area 2) Greener Homes in Lancashire: this supports middle to higher income homeowners and private landlords to improve their properties with insulation, clean heating, solar panels, electric vehicle charging, and a range of other green technologies Our Home Energy and Retrofit Advisors are at the forefront of delivering these advice services. They provide personalised one-to-one advice over the phone and video call, via digital messaging, and at face-to-face events. The role requires flexibility in where and how work is delivered, including remote working and attending events or meetings at different locations as required. The most important element of the role is the ability and desire to meet and engage with people – to understand their issues and their priorities, to provide the help that they need and to make them feel positive about making their homes warmer and greener. An interest in home energy improvements and more generally in the environment and sustainability is important, but full technical training is

	provided. This includes accredited Level 3 qualifications in Energy Awareness and Retrofit Advice. Both of these programmes are in the process of expanding, and our advisors will be expected to actively support this growth. Advisors will be at the forefront of developing the range of services available, testing new approaches, and contributing ideas that help the organisation adapt, innovate, and respond to emerging opportunities. Green Rose is a small but dedicated organisation. Team members are expected to work flexibly, share tasks, and take a proactive approach to problem-solving. This may involve stepping outside of a role definition at times to support colleagues, organisational priorities, and the ongoing development of our services.
Working Relationships	The role will involve a close working relationship with the Green Rose staff and directors, council officers, installers and frontline staff at partner agencies.
